SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

OCTOBER TERM, 1987

REPLY OF PETITIONERS

MAY IT PLEASE THE COURT:

Respondent AT&T is correct that changes were made in the final petition. However, these changes were not, as Respondent complains, substantive. They consisted of deleting a summary part of the Statement of the Case; inserting Item 7 under the Statement of the Case; adding emphasis at Item 15 under the Statement.

The Summary of the Agreement was expanded; no change was made in the Agreement; a Conclusion was added.

No new arguments or authorities were added; no new substantive material was added.

Petitioners suggest that they be allowed to substitute an exact copy of the Petition received January 11, 1988 for that received March 15, 1988. Further, that the origin of the problem of form is in financing the printing costs from among 3 petitioners (now in reduced circumstances) and a sole practitioner not fully aware of Rule 33.7. Accordingly, if the Court be inclined to sanctions, it is respectfully suggested that the expense of reprinting (the fourth time) be sanction enough.

Respectfully submitted,

J. COURTNEY WILSON
